Laura Boulton, well-known lecturer and world traveler, will give three talks this month at The Cleveland Museum of Art. NEPAL TODAY will be her subject on Friday January 11 at 8:15 p.m.; JAPANESE HOLIDAY, lecture and color film for young people, on Saturday January 12 at 1:30 p.m.; and MODERN TURKEY on Sunday January 13 at 3:45 p.m.

Mrs. Boulton has traveled throughout the entire world several times. During her trips to remote parts of the globe she makes sound recordings of primitive and oriental music. In addition, she creates color films of native life, ceremonies and special celebrations such as the royal wedding in Nepal. These films are always presented with a special emphasis on art and music. She has probably the greatest collection in this country of musical instruments from primitive and oriental peoples.

All three of her talks are open free to the public.
